Constantine Took No Part In Any Pro-German Plots

Englishman Friend of Monarch
Offers Proof No Agreement
Bound Greece to Germany.

London.—(U. N. S.)—That ex-King Constantine, of Greece, never took part in any pro-German intrigues; that he never at any time plotted treachery against the allies; and that he had no agreement with the Kaiser which bound him and his country to Germany are some of the claims made by George F. Abbott, of London.

Abbott lived for many years in Greece during the ex-king's regime and was a personal friend of the former monarch. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Abbott, is a well-known figure in the feminist movement, as she is secretary of the International Women Suffrage alliance, of which Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is president.

"In spite of repeated and definite threats on the part of Germany, King Constantine absolutely refused to move from his attitude of neutrality during the war," declared Abbott. "He even went so far as to state that he would attack the Kaiser's Balkan allies should they threaten the interests of Greece."

"His attitude was plainly shown by a communication he sent to the Kaiser on Aug. 7, 1914, in answer to a threat which had been made to the effect that he did not side with Germany in relations between the two countries would cease," he asserted.

Answered the Kaiser.
"After serious reflection I do not see how I could help you even if I mobilized my army at once. The Mediterranean is at the mercy of the Anglo-French fleets, which would destroy our royal and mercantile marine. They would take our islands and would prevent the concentration of my army, which can only be carried by sea. Thus, without being able to be useful to you in anything we should be wiped off the map. We must maintain an absolute neutrality. I can only refrain from attacking your friends, Bulgaria and Turkey, so long as they do not touch our interests."

"This has been distorted by some of the press into a pledge favorable to Germany."

"Further proof of what I claim can be found, strange to say, in a Venetian white book printed in an English translation in New York in 1919 under the title of 'Publication Supplementary Diplomatic Documents, 1913 to 1917.'"

So far I have only shown that King Constantine was not willing to join with Germany against the allies. On the other hand, I have proofs that he was willing and ready to ally himself with the British and French against their common enemy.

Joined the Allies.
"On Aug. 12, 1914, the king expressed himself as willing to enter the war on the side of the allies. He offered for this purpose the whole of his army and his only stipulation was that the Greek forces should not be moved to any place where they could not, if need arose, operate against Bulgaria."

PRESENTS PORTRAIT OF JUDGE LURTON
Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 21.—(Special.) An oil painting of the late Justice Horace Lurton will be presented to the United States district court here. The painting was given to Col. William A. Henderson, of Washington, D. C., just before the death of Judge Lurton, and Col. Henderson wants the federal court here to have it for the walls.

Justice Henderson was in the city and spoke to Judge E. T. Sanford about the portrait. Judge Sanford said he would be delighted to accept the portrait for the court, and it will be sent here some time after New Year's. It is in the law office of Col. Henderson in Washington. Judge Lurton was a justice on the Tennessee supreme court and later chief justice. He was then made federal judge of the court of appeals at Cincinnati and was afterwards made an associate justice of the United States supreme court.

He was born in the neighborhood of Clarksville, Tenn., and is buried there now, having died in Atlantic City a few years ago.

Col. Henderson proposed to make a speech of presentation in January if he can get the painting shipped in that month. He said today that Justice Lurton was a great admirer of Judge Sanford and made certain predictions regarding him, one of which was that Judge Sanford would "stick to the law" and not go into politics. This has been carried out so far, for Judge Sanford recently announced that he will not be a candidate for the United States attorney-generalship which his friends had urged him to work for.

The colonel said Justice Lurton was the highest judge who ever sat in Knoxville and that the painting would be more appropriately located here than at Washington.

TEACHERS' PAY CHECKS
READY WEDNESDAY
Announcement was made Tuesday morning that the checks for the city school teachers would be ready for distribution not later than Wednesday of this week. Checks to the amount of $3,000 are being signed by City Auditor Allen Head, and every effort is being made to get them issued before Christmas so the teachers will have the money for their Christmas shopping.

MORE TOURISTS HERE
People are continuing to come by way of Chattanooga over the various routes from Nashville to Florida. There were ten cars stalled at the Dixie high way office by passing tourists before 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The automobiles which visited the local office declared that they had very little difficulty in making the trip.

ARTESIAN WELL WILL BE SUSTAINED AS MEMORIAL

Heirs of John P. Fort, Man
Bored It, Will Present It to County.

An unusual ceremony will take place in Dougherty county, Georgia, Tuesday, Dec. 28, when the first artesian well ever bored in that state will be given to the county by the heirs of John P. Fort, the man who bored the well.

Col. Fort was a brother of the late Tomlinson Fort, of this city, and had many relatives here. His son, John P. Fort, Jr., is an attorney here today. Friends of the family in the city have received cards of invitation announcing that "in memory of John P. Fort, the first artesian well bored in Georgia will be given by his family to Dougherty county Tuesday morning, Dec. 28, 1920, at 1 o'clock. The presentation address will be made by Mr. Harry Stillwell Edwards, of Macon, and Mr. Henry McIntosh will accept the well on behalf of the county."

Col. Fort's father, Dr. Tomlinson Fort, of Milledgeville, was one of the first backers of the Western & Atlantic railway, and early became interested in the future of the city that is now Chattanooga.

WANT BOY EXPERT TO SPEND TWO WEEKS HERE
An effort is being made by representatives of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce and Real Estate exchange to have Dr. Frank H. Gamel, the boy expert, come to Chattanooga Feb. 13 for a series of addresses to be delivered in the public schools. The matter has been taken up with Commissioner Francis and Sup. L. J. Jones.

Dr. Gamel was recently in Chattanooga and made a talk at McCallie school which resulted in some very effective results.

In the regular monthly bulletin issued by the Knoxville Rotary club the following comment was included in its "The greatest thing done was to keep P. H. Gamel, the boy expert, in Knoxville two weeks with the high school boys. The boys came to him in numbers greater than he could handle requesting private interviews. They told him their problems and asked his help in solving them."

DAVENPORT PAID $2,000
The first payment of $2,000 was made on the Davenport home, corner Fairview avenue and East Ninth street, by the city Tuesday afternoon. Six $3,000 notes payable annually were issued, with 5 per cent interest coupons attached.
